

FPC PRESS RELEASE

09 December 2008

FPC marks the sad passing of former President.

The Fresh Produce Consortium offers sincere condolences to the wife and family of Alan McCutcheon following his untimely death yesterday at the age of 62.

Alan McCutcheon was President of the FPC from 2004 to 2005 when he stood down prematurely due to ill health.

Jim Rogers, FPC President said "He was a well respected member of the industry and his commitment to the FPC during his time as President was extremely valued by the board. His passing is a loss to the fruit importing sector in particular and our thoughts and best wishes are with his family at this sad time."

Nigel Jenney, CEO said "Alan's passion for the UK fresh produce industry and his dedication to the Fresh Produce Consortium was widely recognised. His knowledge and experience in the industry were invaluable and he will be greatly missed."
